LEADERS PREDICT NEW TAXES

The News Review

By BRUCE CATTON

WHEN you get through chuckling about the story of the bogus oil promoter who came to grief in Tulsa after a short but active career as a big shot, you might find it worth while to take a second look at the affair. There is something rather instructive about it all.

Better Housing Office Will Be in Kinser Building

Applications for Loans Will Be Received Friday

CITY-WIDE CANVASS

Field Workers Will Explain Program in Detail to Interested

R. V. Herndon, chairman of the Better Housing campaign program, announced Thursday that an office would be located in the building now occupied by Tom Kinser, South Walnut street, and that Mr. Kinser would be office manager for the federal housing administration here.

Mr. Herndon also appointed a committee to canvass the downtown section Friday to obtain funds to keep the office in operation.

Information regarding financing, modernization, repairs, purchasing homes and building new homes under the federal housing act, will be given by Mr. Kinser.

Committee Named

Mr. Herndon also announced that Vincent Foster had been appointed on a committee headed by Herndon as chairman and comprised of E. S. Greening, J. W. Black, Oliver Williams and C. C. Lewis, who have been appointed to push the campaign here.

Robert B. Babbitt of the state FERA office has conducted a school here for the past three days, instructing field workers on the various details of the federal project. The field workers will start out Friday to make a city-wide canvass explaining the program to those interested.

A meeting of merchants, building supply dealers, contractors and carpenters was held Thursday morning at city hall. The meeting was addressed by Mr. Herndon, local chairman, and Robert B. Babbitt of Little Rock, who is here assisting in setting up the machinery for re-building program.

Mr. Babbitt reported on the progress that had been made and pointed out benefits that would be derived from taking advantage of the better housing act.

Survey Is Planned

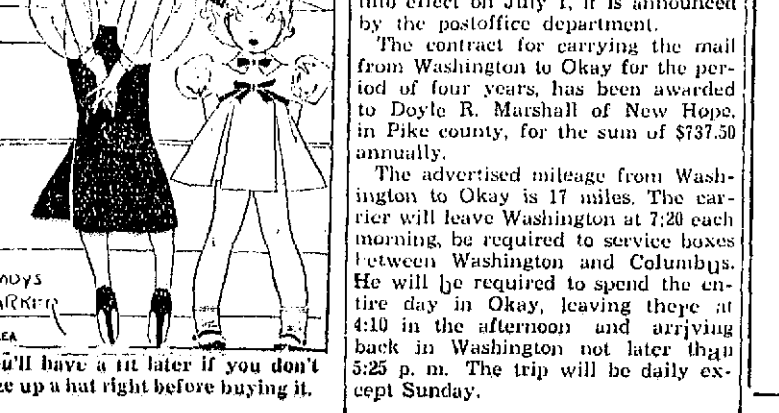

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Four different government agencies were reported working on a plan for conducting a nation-wide survey to find out how many new homes the country needs.

It was contemplated as a work project which would give employment to white collar jobless on relief rolls. It would be designed to give some idea of the number of homes needed, along with figures on the incomes of the persons who need them.

Housing experts said that a few years back a marriage meant that there was about to be a new home set up, either in an apartment or in an individual establishment. The chief offsetting influence was deaths. But, they added, the last several years have brought the depression, along with a decline in marriages. And when people did marry, many settled down with relatives.

The government had to resurvey 1,000,000 acres of land after the 1812 earthquake at New Madrid, Mo.

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—A crew of "trouble shooters" and generative operators went to work in the power plant at the Toledo Edison company Thursday, ending a strike which for a while threatened to shut off electric power over an area 800 miles wide in northwestern Ohio.

Death Is Missed by Hair

A car traveling at blinding speed, a treacherous streak of oil, and the horrified cry, "He's over the wall," all as swiftly as a flash of thought! One chance in a thousand for his life was the best Al Gordon, California race driver, could expect as his mount swerved and crashed into the concrete embankment, as shown in the remarkable top photo, only a few yards from the gap in the wall where another driver had died shortly before. In a split second the car had overturned and Gordon, flung free, unhurt, was helping his bruised mechanic, Jimmy Dunham, from the wreckage, as shown center. Perched on the wall in the bottom photo, the crippled car is just one more reminder of the hazards that face drivers in the mad whirl of the Indianapolis Speedway race.

Funds for Road Building Asked

Delegations From All Parts of Arkansas Gather at Capitol

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Fifty-seven delegations from all parts of Arkansas presented appeals to the state highway commissioner Thursday for a share of federal funds to be used for highway construction.

The commission will take the proposals under advisement for consideration in the allocation of $6,926,821 to be allotted Arkansas by the federal government for road work.

J. S. Brooks of El Dorado, urged "equality for South Arkansas" in the road matters. He said that north Arkansas had nearly three times the hard-surfaced highways as south Arkansas.

Carter Convicted of "Legs" Murder

Prominent Business Man Is Given Life in Prison

LAUREL, Miss.—(AP)—W. M. Carter, prominent business man, was convicted by a jury Tuesday of the "legs" killing of Mrs. Daisy Kocum, and his punishment was set at life imprisonment.

The jury received the case shortly after noon Wednesday.

Ouida Keeton, daughter of the dead woman, testified that Carter had killed her mother so they could "have more privileges," but Carter took the stand to contradict her. Ouida has already been convicted in the case and is under a sentence of life imprisonment.

Ouida, who was formerly employed by Carter as his secretary, said they had had improper relations over a period of more than a decade, but Carter, although saying he was in love with her, declared their relations had never been intimate.

Mrs. Keeton's death was disclosed with the finding of the lower torso and legs of a woman on a little used road near here. Other portions of the body have not been found.

Consider Higher Levies on Gifts and Inheritances

Would Increase Purchasing Power and Distribute Wealth

NRA PLAN IS TALKED

Seems Certain Congress Will Grant Roosevelt's Request

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—In the midst of sharply conflicting speculation as to what term of office the New Deal may plan for the NRA, some congressional leaders said Thursday that the White House was tentatively considering a new high tax on inheritances and gifts.

This program, as explained by the legislators, would be an attempt to continue and broaden "NRA's" basic social aims.

They declared it would increase purchasing power through re-distribution of money.

Will Set Up Plan

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—It seemed certain that congress would promptly approve President Roosevelt's proposal for continuation of the NRA in skeleton form.

Observers agreed that the president had kept the way open for enlarging its organization if he decided such action to be advisable.

They agreed that he intends to let the nation compare conditions under the NRA codes with conditions since they were abandoned and then to decide if the Supreme Court's limiting of power of the federal government shall be allowed to stand.

As a start toward granting the president's request, the necessary amendments to the resolution providing for extension of the NRA to April 1, 1936, was made. The Senate already has approved the resolution.

However, an attempt to give the NRA "stop-gap" resolution a privileged status, so it could be passed by the house Friday, was blocked temporarily by Representative Short, Republican, Missouri.

"How can you extend a carcass?" he asked.

Democratic leaders, however, predicted the extension measure would be approved by Friday night.

Speaker Byrnes and Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee said that there was as yet no determination upon what kind of a permanent NRA could be evolved, and that there had been no final decision that there even would be a permanent NRA.

Markets

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—The cotton market opened Thursday net unchanged to six points lower in quiet trading. Offerings were light at the first call, but with a scarcity of buyers the business was sufficient to bring about easiness of active positions.

July sold off to 11.36, October 11.55 and December 11.69, while both January and March were unchanged from Wednesday's final prices.

Liverpool cables reported a quiet market there with some Bombay selling in the near months and a general uncertainty regarding the American cotton program tended to restrict dealings.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened quiet, three to seven points decline in response to lower Liverpool cables and in absence of more than a very moderate demand. July 11.40; October 11.11; December 11.17; January 11.18; March 11.24; May 11.27.

New Breaks in Flood District

Rivers Spread Out Over Thousands of Acres of Farm Land

KANSAS CITY.—(AP)—Fanning flood waters of the Kaw and Missouri rivers spread out over thousands of acres of fertile farm land Thursday after breaking through dikes and levees.

Carrying flood waters from Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas, the Kaw broke through the levee at North Lawrence, Kansas, sending the torrent on to hundreds of acres of rich bottom land and threatened to inundate North Lawrence.

In the rest of the valley from Lawrence to the Kaw's mouth at Kansas City farmers prepared for the flood waters and workers struggled to erect barriers and strengthen permanent ones.

Many Found to Have Low Blood Pressure.

While you may have heard a great deal about high blood pressure, it may surprise you to learn that a considerable number of people suffer from low blood pressure and have symptoms which are said to be due to the fact that the blood does not circulate with sufficient force behind it.

Low blood pressure, of course, is not a disease; in fact, neither is high blood pressure. Each is associated with conditions within the body which represent abnormalities.

Pressure in the blood vessels is the same kind that you get with water in a plumbing system or in a hose. The force that the circulation of the blood gets from contraction of the muscles of the heart, the caliber of the vessels through which the blood is passing, and the elasticity of the walls naturally regulate the pressure.

It has been estimated that about 2% to 3% per cent of all people examined have low blood pressure. Many are quite healthy notwithstanding this condition. On the other hand, sometimes there are definite abnormalities in the body to account for the low pressure.

In some instances the glands seem to be at fault, because they secrete substances which affect elasticity of the walls of blood vessels. In some cases low blood pressure is due to a weakness of the muscle in the heart.

In certain instances, loss of a considerable amount of blood may be responsible for low blood pressure, and there are other cases in which blood is not lost from the body, but temporarily is withdrawn from circulation into capillary blood vessels or large vessels of the abdomen.

Exactly as there are cases of high blood pressure that cannot be explained, there are similar cases of low blood pressure. The victims have headaches, dizziness, palpitation on exertion, they tire easily, their appetites are capricious, and yet no definite changes can be found in the body to explain the low blood pressure or these symptoms.

Undoubtedly the causes are hidden in the activities of some organs of the body, but with limitations of our present knowledge and our present technique, it is simply not possible to find the basis.

When we know the cause of low blood pressure, that cause can be attacked and removed and the condition improved in the absence, however, of any known cause, it is customary for the doctor to give certain drugs which have the value of sustaining blood pressure.

If the heart is concerned, methods of treatment may be directed at its weaknesses. For most cases in which low blood pressure is a continuous and permanent condition, there is as yet no specific method of treatment.

Maj. Hoople Would Feel at Home Here—Story of Paris Pension Has a Familiar Touch

Martin Hare seems to be a young Irishman with an observing eye and a gift for pungent and mildly caustic comment; and her new book, "The Diary of a Pensionnaire," is the sort of thing that will provide a good deal of entertainment for the public which ate up "The Diary of a Provincial Lady."

This book records the private observations of a woman who married a young Polish commercial traveler, is obliged to spend some months in a Paris pension while her husband scouts about Europe in search of business.

Reading it, you discover a number of things—including the fact that a boarding house is a boarding house the world over, and that life in a Paris pension is remarkably like life in a similar establishment in New York, Cleveland, or San Francisco. Major Hoople and his bustling consort would be at home anywhere.

The book is really a collection of sketches of the inmates of this house; the daddling old ladies, the over-vacuous young things, the pre-occu-

Washington Men Attend Road Meet

Seek Funds for Highway Between Blevins and Cross Roads

A group of Washington citizens, including members of the town council and A. P. Delony, W. I. Stroud and others were in Little Rock Thursday in conference with members of the state highway commission who are receiving applications from the different towns and cities for road improvements to be made with government funds.

The Washington delegation seek to get the Highway Department's approval of a gravel highway from an intersection with the Hope-Blevins highway east of Washington, on by Washington and connecting with the Hope-Columbus highway at Cross Roads. The proposed spur would be approximately 10 miles in length and would be of gravel.

It would form a connection that has long been needed between these two points. The Washington-Cross Roads strip would probably take considerable money to build as the entire roadbed would have to be changed or a large expenditure made in widening the road at the point it runs through the deep clay banks between the Columbus road and Cross Roads.

Considerable money has already been spent on this roadway by the CWA, none of which has been of any real value except for the small amount of graveling done on the road near Cross Roads.

The road to the intersection of the Blevins highway would probably follow the present road leading by the W. F. Gilbert place, through King and Stroud lands to W. J. Hartsfield's, where it would connect with the present gravel road. These two roads would be of considerable benefit to the residents of communities both east and west of Washington in the event they are allowed.

Any funds allotted would come from that part of the government's $4,800,000 work relief program allotted for such purposes.

The Washington waterworks project has seemingly been abandoned as Washington leaders are of the opinion that 55 per cent of the cost could not be repaid by the town. The government would make an outright grant of 45 per cent of the money and would expect repayment of the remainder, taking a mortgage on the waterworks for security.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF By Alicia Hart

Exercise Banishes Insomnia

"I believe exercises will counteract most perils to a woman's beauty," a physical director told me the other day. Some reduce excess weight, fill out hollows, give poise and balance, and what's not generally known, there are those which relieve insomnia.

Obviously, even though you don't enjoy them and realize that they make you put you to sleep, it's an excellent idea to do a few.

Don't put it off until you are exhausted from turning over and over while counting sheep and thinking of yards of black velvet stretched out before your weary eyes. As soon as you realize sleep isn't going to come to you soon, get up and do this one:

Stand about one foot away from the back of a straight chair with heels together and the little finger on each hand placed on the back of the chair. Put no weight on the fingers. They are held on the chair simply to help you maintain your balance.

Now rise up on your toes, keeping your back, neck and head straight. Bend your knees and lower your body until you are in a squatting position. All of your weight should be on your toes. After three seconds, rise to the original position, slowly count three again and then repeat. It should be done slowly and no more than fifteen times. Make your legs do all the work. When you finish, you probably will feel a trifle light-headed, but don't let that worry you. The object of the exercise is to draw the blood from the upper part of your body into your legs. Get back into bed, stretch out comfortably, relaxing every muscle and the chances are you'll go to sleep immediately.

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElfitt © 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY KATHARINE STRYKERHURST, beautiful, 20, is in love with MICHAEL HEATHEROE who runs a riding school. Katharine's father is rich and her stepmother, BERTINE, is ambitious.

JOE PARKER, Katharine's friend, has an ambition to be a writer and is saved from suicide by young DR. JOHNNIE KANE.

SALLY MOON, local coquette, tricks Michael into an engagement, and when he tries to wriggle out, tightens her hold. Katharine fears Michael is to marry Sally and is broken-hearted.

She overhears two detectives talking for Michael's address and thinking him in danger, rushes to warn him. Michael sets off with Katharine in her car. He tells her he loves her and asks her to marry him. Impulsively Katharine agrees. They are married in an obscure little town. Afterward Michael insists on returning to face the detectives.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXV

MICHAEL said quietly, "Tricked you? No."

"But you did!" Katharine insisted. Her eyes were wide with a sort of horror. "Oh, if you knew you'd nothing to fear why did you make me come off with you like this? You said you wouldn't go unless I went with you."

"Because," the man said with deliberation, "I loved you."

"Ah, that!" She struck one palm against another, as if in fury. "It is a queer sort of love that doesn't trust—Isn't open and aboveboard?"

"This is," persisted Michael Heatheroe, "Ah, don't let anything come between us now..."

"But why the detectives?" pursued Katharine, in that bewildered tone. "Why should they be looking for you, without reason?"

"We can go back," the man said quietly, "and find out what it's all about."

It had been different when she had thought she was racing off with a vagabond, a fugitive. The whole affair had worn a sort of brave air. Now—that could she say to her stepmother, to all the others? She had married Sally Moon's fiancée, Katharine Strykerhurst, the girl who inspired a jilt.

"I hate you!" she cried wildly, striking at the hand she had caressed five minutes before.

"No, you don't, Katharine."

She thrust him away. "I do. I swear it."

She was close to tears—perilous, angry, choking tears. But she would not let them come. "What they'll say of me!" she raged. "And it will be true. A fool..."

"Does it matter?"

She did not deign to look at him. "Of course, it does."

"That, my dear Katharine," said the man beside her, in a coolly conversational tone, "is your trouble. You have a picture of yourself as others see you. You are continually altering that picture to suit your audience, living up to it."

It's too hard. Snap out of it. Be yourself.

"Oh, oh!" she choked with rage. "How dare you talk like this to me? After all, I—"

"After all, I am your wife." But she checked them.

"I dare," said Michael Heatheroe. "How dare you talk like this to me? After all, I—"

"Because I love you. Don't shake your head. It's true. I've loved you since the first day I saw that mysterious red mouth and those contradictory, cool eyes of yours. I knew you were my girl... the only one I'd ever seen and wanted."

Some dangerous softness touched her heart but she steeled it against him.

"Good talk," she scoffed, "but it doesn't mean anything."

"Katharine—darling," he said, "don't be like this. You were so sweet a while back... I thought I had never known such sweetness. You were a statue come to life at last."

"I wish I were dead," she choked, in rage. "I'd better be."

"What a strange wedding day! The sun had been out, but now the clouds were lowering. Thunder in the air!"

"Do you remember," he asked, "the day the rain drove us into the cabin?"

Mutinously she refused to answer. The drawing voice went on. "You were so high and mighty," Michael Heatheroe said, "I longed to teach you a lesson. Little wildcat!"

"But you didn't," taunted the girl. "You didn't dare."

"That was it," he told her. "I was—afraid of you."

She had kept her eyes resolutely ahead, but now almost against her will, she whirled and stared at him. The emotion that flared between them was at white heat... anger fused with love. Her composure broke. She was in his arms, half-sobbing, half-laughing.

"Michael, Michael, why do we quarrel like this? How horrible of us!"

"I don't know. Let's stop it."

SHE straightened, dabbing at wet eyes with his big handkerchief. "It doesn't matter what you've done. Some power brought us together. But one thing I've got to ask you..."

"What's that?"

"We mustn't announce our marriage now."

Katharine spoke seldom during the drive. Once she allowed her hand to slip into Michael's lean brown one, and at a stoplight her eyes sought his. He smiled. What a cool, restrained creature this girl was! The man who won her love and confidence could be proud of himself.

"Tips will have said I went off with you," she said once, musingly, during the drive.

But Michael said Tips was far too clever for that. "He can play dumb as beautifully as anyone you ever knew," he said. "Tips won't know a thing."

The miles flew by. The rain pelted down wildly, a storm of drops against the windshield. Brown puddles gathered along the road. There was an oak leaf pasted against the glass—Michael had to reach out and brush it off. The afternoon darkened. The afternoon of her wedding day. Did ever any girl have a stranger one?

Her mind was confused. Could Michael be sure these men meant no ill to him? He seemed so confident. Was it bravado? She could not tell. She was conscious, at the very core of her being, of a sick feeling of apprehension. She would have so much to explain to Bertine—to her father. And she was a poor liar. Would some local correspondent for a New York paper pick up her name from the marriage license record of that obscure town? You could never tell...

NO good to worry, sang the tires; no good to worry. For better, for worse she had taken this man beside her. Fate had been too strong for them both.

Ian Cock's church spires came into view below a rise of drueched woodland. The pin oaks on the old Rogers place swept in the wind, like curtseying maidens in dark green draperies, as the little car drew up. There was no one about.

"Goodby, Michael—dear."

He was out of the car, standing hatless in the rain beside her. "Goodby, my darling."

She gave one swift look about. She slipped the ring from her finger.

"Look, Michael, you must keep this for me. I dare not..."

Frowning a little, he slipped the ring into the pocket of his coat. "I wish you needn't take it off."

Her glance flew to the porch. The two men she had seen in the village, now hatless, apparently at home, were emerging from the screened doorway.

"There they are, Michael." It seemed to her they could hear the wild pounding of her heart. "I told you—"

He glanced coolly at the intruders. "So they are. Well, what of it?"

"Michael, perhaps I'd better wait... I'm terribly afraid."

He shook his head. "You mustn't telephone you..."

She had to be content with that. They parted without another word. Katharine backed the car out of the lane; in a trance she followed the road toward home.

She had Bertine to face. She had an endless tissue of lies before her... but she was not thinking of this as she turned into her own driveway. She was thinking of Michael Heatheroe's kiss upon her lips. What lay before them both she could not guess.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—There are miserable days here for prophets. But it seems no great risk to make at least one prediction:

We're going to find out whether...

NRA was a boon or a curse.

In case it wasn't much of either, we'll find that out, too.

There hasn't been any real agreement about it. In fact, the administration—except for the loyal and zealous NRA-ers themselves—had been going cold on NRA for months, to the point of doubting whether it was more help or hindrance in the recovery effort.

Even Roosevelt, it may be told, at one point became distinctly lukewarm about the experiment. That was why senate leaders were able to put through the devastating Clark amendment extending NRA nine months and killing it as effectively as the supreme court could ever kill it.

Only when the political implications of allowing such an important New Deal segment to die ingloriously on the eve of a presidential campaign became plain to Roosevelt did he turn on the heat for extension until after the next election.

Jitters Over Future
Now NRA, at least as it was, is dead. Its enemies are happy, but already there's a wave of jitters over the possible effects of the obliteration of the codes.

What happens when industry is left to itself and "chiselers" are allowed at large?

Regardless of administration stop-gaps and future plans, everyone will watch for proof or disproof of General Johnson's assertion that the end of NRA would mean loss of 3,000,000 jobs and $3,000,000,000 in wages.

Or were certain economists right when they insisted that recovery was being retarded, unemployment continued, and industrial activity hampered by code restrictions?

You recall, of course, that there has been constant debate between NRA's enemies and friends as to whether its operation was responsible for business improvement in the last two years or whether the improvement was due to natural forces which might have operated even more effectively without NRA.

What of Little Fellow?
What will happen to the "little fellow" in business, for whom Senators Nye and Borah, Clarence Darrow, and others bellowed so loudly? According to one version, he is now released from oppression and bound to be happier and more prosperous.

But in NRA files is impressive evidence that "little fellows," prior to the code era, were being gobbled up at a terrific rate through bankruptcies and mergers.

Will the gobbling process be resumed? A wave of price-cutting seems to be inevitable. Will it be accompanied by deliberate price wars, designed to drive the "small business man" out?

Try to figure this one out. One quite large school of thought insists that it will stimulate consumer demand by expanding purchasing power and thus start more wheels turning and create more employment.

But one also seems to have heard much from high places to the effect that higher price levels were essential to prosperity and that prices still weren't high enough. And everybody knows that prices boosted and maintained under the codes were, in effect, permitted as a trade for minimum wage and hour standards in the benefited industries. What about wages?

If wages are cut, what happens to that purchasing power which everyone agrees is so necessary and which, according to the first version, will be increased by lower prices.

It certainly does tend to get a fellow all mixed up!

SO THEY SAY

The Herculean task of the government today is to take care that its citizens have the necessities of life. We are seeking honestly to do this, irrespective of class or group.—President Roosevelt.

We must get the idea that the Heavenly Father gave this earth to everyone and did not intend for any of us to be a pig with any part of it.—Newton D. Baker, attacking "national isolation."

Men are much more interesting and intelligent than they were in my day—Margaret Gorman, 103-year-old Chicago spinster.

What is capitalism but the right to be thrifty and enjoy the savings of your thrift and initiative?—James W. Gerard, wartime ambassador to Germany.

I am proud of my country, and of its people and the struggle we are making, striving not to get back to old financial conditions, but to new and better things.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Graduation

Heaven is not reached at a single bound; But we build the ladder by which we rise From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies, And we mount to its summit round by round, We rise by the things that are under our feet.

By what we have mastered of good and gain; By the pride deposited and the passion slain, And the vanquished ills that we hourly meet.

We hope, we resolve, we aspire, we pray, And we think that we mount the air on wings, Beyond the realm of sensual things, While our feet still cling to the heavy clay.

Only in dreams is a ladder thrown From the weary earth to the sapphire walls; But the dreams depart and the vision falls, And the sleeper wakes on his pillow of stone.—Selected.

Mammy's Lil' Wild Rose is a tale of the sunny South and the Virginia mountains. There are many tense situations that will make your heart ache with pity and thrill with love for Little Rose as she strives to unravel the tangled threads of her life.

The cast:

Editor Star: In Sunday's Arkansas Gazette I read a long list of our law makers in last session of the legislature, among them our own Senator John L. Wilson, who have filed many claims before certain commissions in Little Rock for payment.

Would it be out of place to ask Mr. Wilson to give us some details of these claims?

Does he get fees for their collection or does he present them free of charge and consider the salary received as being sufficient remuneration for his services as our senator from Hempstead and Nevada counties?

I recall that one of our former senators charged fees for such work and they came to decidedly more than his salary amounted to.

How can one who charges a fee for handling such cases before the legislature be unbiased in casting his vote?

Very truly yours,
N. P. O'NEAL.

Better Housing Film at Saenger

Shows How Homes May Be Repaired, Improved, Modernized

A second release of "Better Housing News Flashes," produced for the Federal Housing Administration, will be shown at the Saenger theater today and Friday.

The first reel, which was released by the Federal Housing Administration several weeks ago created much favorable comment. It was shown in big theaters as well as small ones throughout the country, including Radio City Music Hall, Capitol and Paramount theaters in New York city and other leading picture houses.

There is a similar demand for the second reel. These pictures have a strong appeal to home owners because they explain in simple form the workings of the National Housing Act and give surprising illustrations of how homes can be repaired, improved or modernized.

This picture is part of the program featuring "Sequoia" that shows both Thursday and Friday.

Predicts Nation-Wide Coal Strike

Forecast of a national walkout of 100,000 bituminous miners on June 17, when present wage contracts between operators and miners terminate, is made by U. S. Sen. Joseph P. Guffey, Pa., left, whose bill to stabilize the industry is before Congress. The crisis was precipitated by the breakdown of wage negotiations between operators and miners in the bituminous coal industry. Senator Guffey believes strike action is certain unless his bill or some other federal anti-price-cutting law is enacted by June 16.

Record-Wrecking Auto Race Winner

Kelly Pettillo, 31-year-old fruit merchant of Huntington Park, Calif., closes his eyes in exhaustion after winning the 500-mile automobile race over the Indianapolis Speedway and setting a new track record—an average speed of 106.240 miles per hour. Pettillo's happy riding mechanic smiles as the pair and their yellow Gilmore Special are surrounded by congratulators at the finish. The victory was worth $27,050. Pettillo was broke when he started.

Neck Is Broken, Infant Plays On

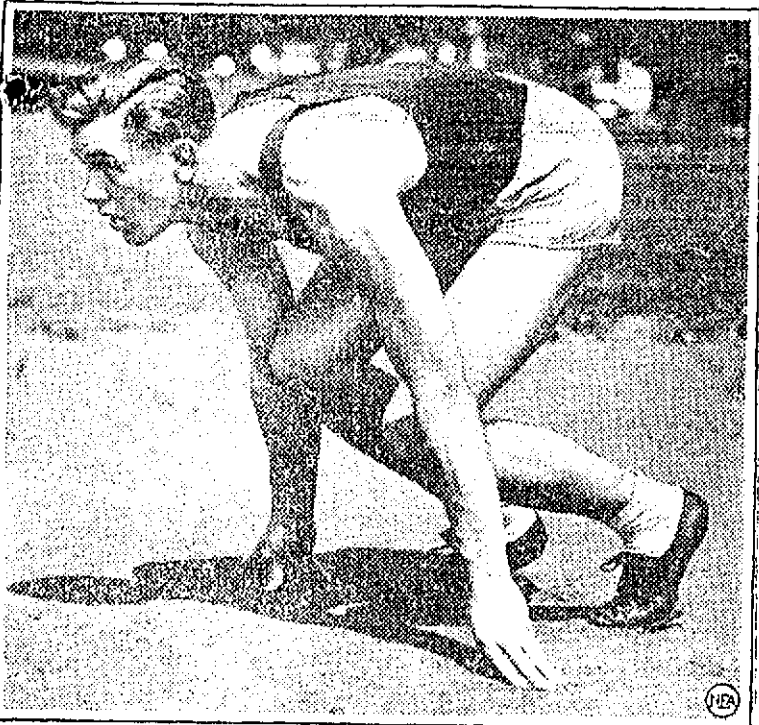

A broken neck isn't injury enough to spoil playtime for Ronnie Hinkle, 16-month-old Fairview, Pa., baby, and here he is looking for new pastimes at his home. The baby fell from his father's truck May 1 and was rushed to an Erie hospital, where he was placed in a head to waist cast. A few days later he was playing out of doors.

Asylum Sliced in Two by Flood

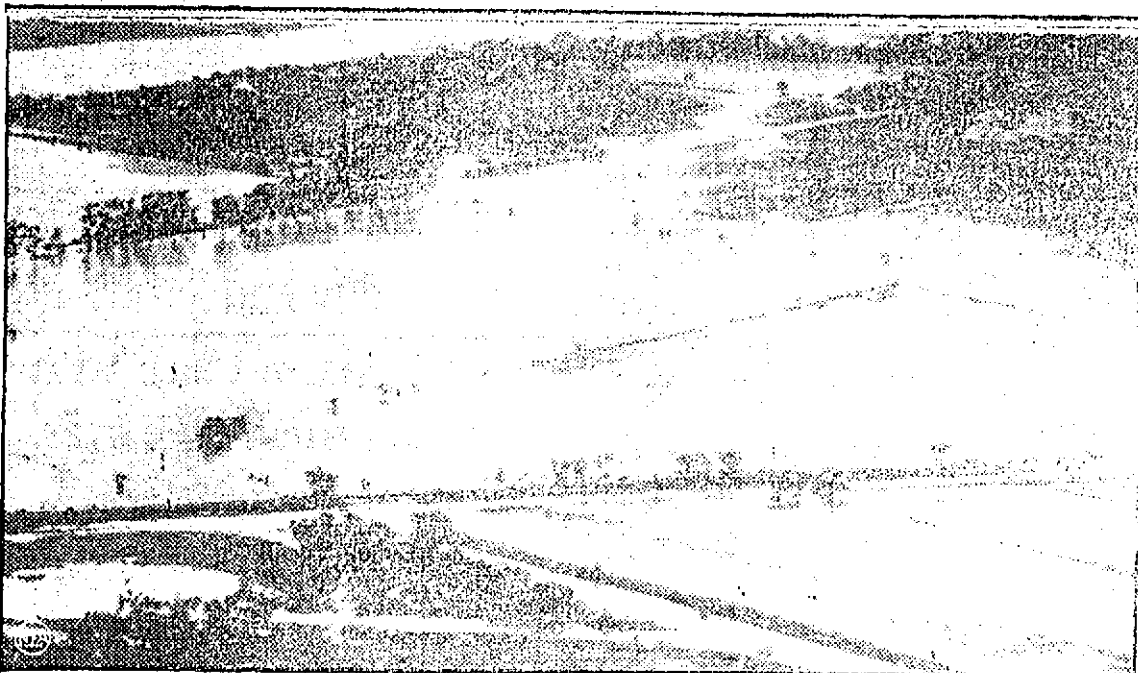

Tottering on the bank of Fountain creek at Pueblo, Colo., half the dormitory of the state asylum annex is shown here, after the swollen stream had torn the structure in two, and left one section tipped crazily in the stream. Killing more than 20 in this section of the state, the floods poured eastward, carrying death and destruction and threatening tremendous damage to crops, with a record rise feared all along the Missouri river.

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON

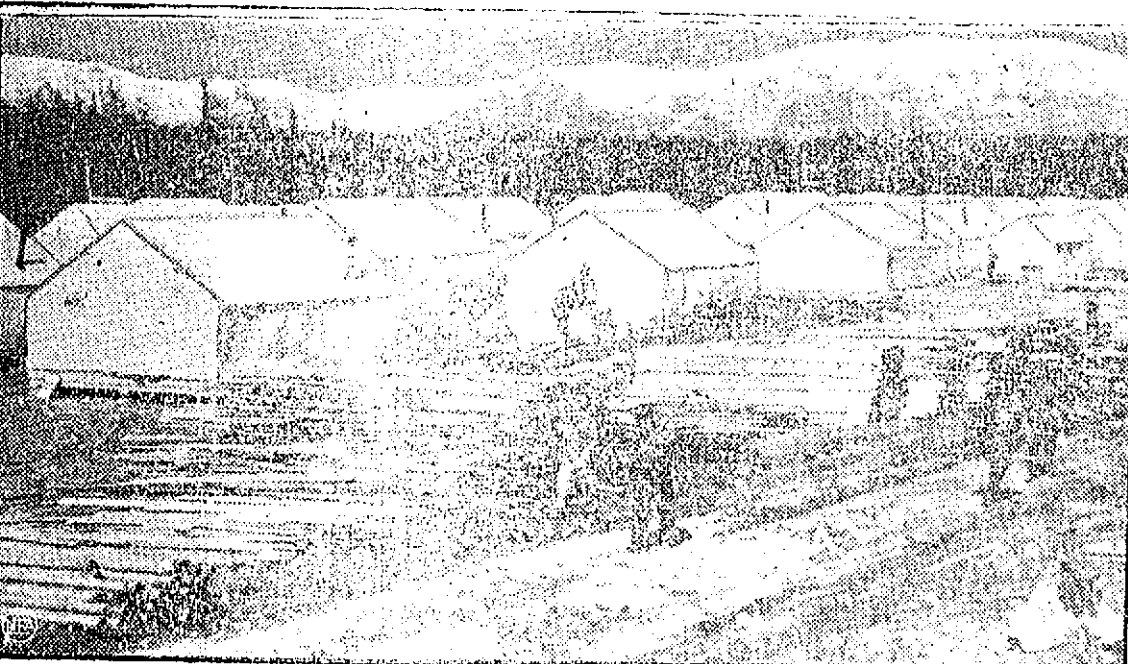

The prowess of two rival athletic families is being carried on in the persons of Eddie Collins, Jr., and Jack Kelly, Jr. The former, below, son of the general manager of the Boston Red Sox and former star second sacker of the Athletics, is the ace sprinter of Episcopal Academy, Philadelphia. The latter, above, is getting some pointers on sculling from his famous father, who is former world's single sculling champion. The youngster, only 8, takes a daily workout on the Schuylkill river at Philadelphia.

Where Flood 'Laid the Dust' and 'Swept Up' Kansas

Gazing out over this waste of waters, Wichita residents opined that the dust which has swept over their city in devastating storms this spring has been "laid" for a long time. With 10 inches of rain sending streams thundering over their banks, this rich farming district near the Kansas city was far under water, adding to the heavy toll taken in five states by the deluge. Menace of dust for this season was believed ended by the rains, which were general throughout the "dust bowl."

Tent City Houses Pioneers Building Alaska Homes

Housing the 500 midwest families colonizing the Matanuska valley in Alaska, this tent city teems with activity as the pioneers, aided by details of transient workers, build their homes, clear the timber, and prepare the land for their first crop next year. Soaring back of the picturesque town of canvas are the snowcaps of the Church mountain range, a vivid contrast to the fertile valley where the sun now shines until nearly midnight.

Even Presidency Holds No Allure

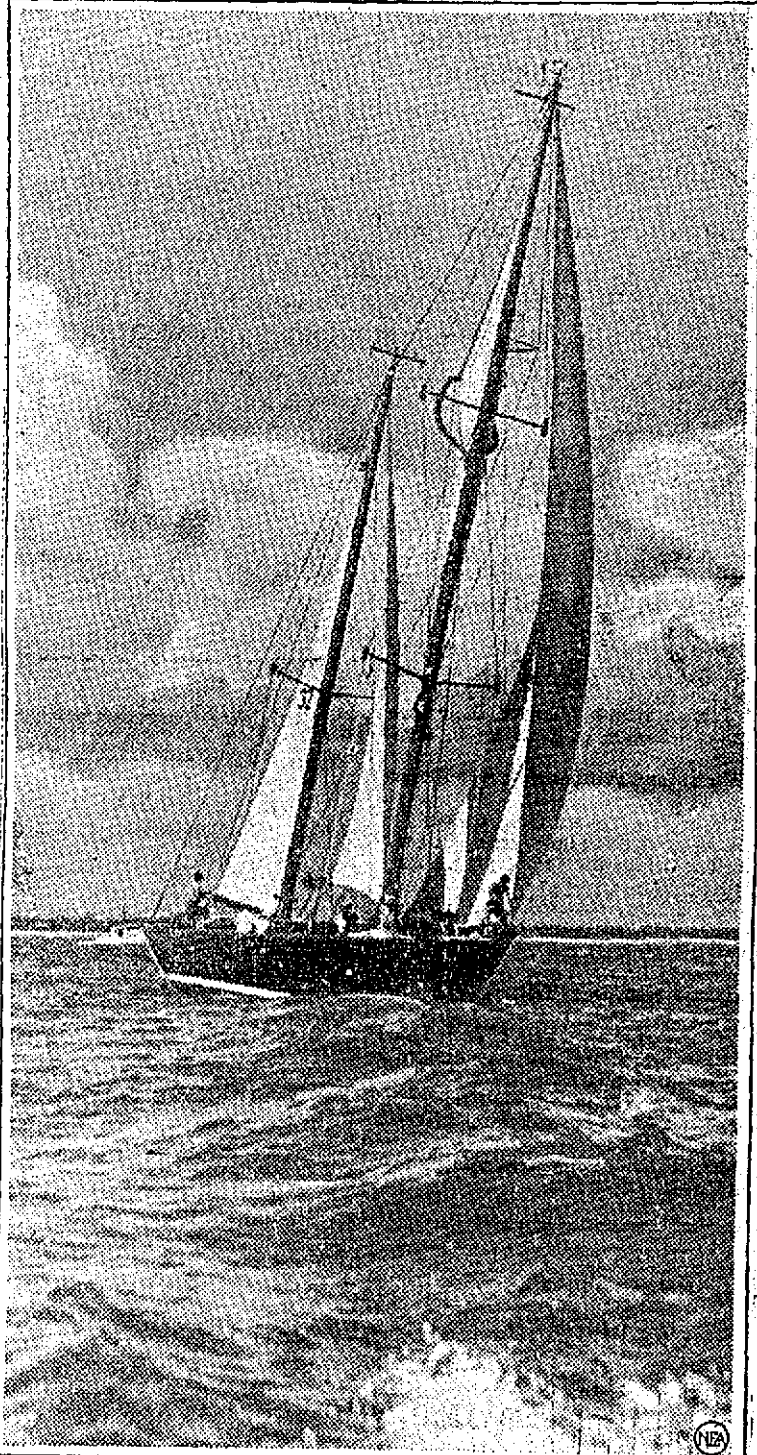

"As a priest I could not hold any office; I am a priest and I hope to die one," Father Charles E. Coughlin, pictured here in New York, told interviewers who asked him whether he would seek the presidency. He organized the eastern branch of his National Union for Social Justice at a meeting in Madison Square Garden.

Saved to Mourn 9 Dead in Flood

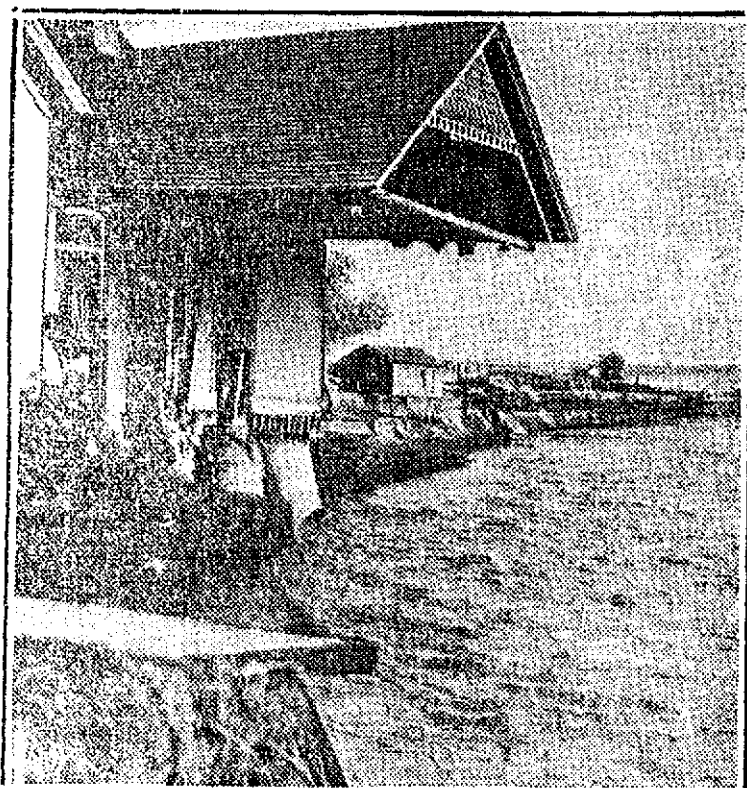

Grief and joy struggle for mastery on the lined face of Charles Fuchs, Oxford, Neb., farmer, as he stands here, reunited with his son Herman, left, exhausted, and his grandson, Howard, 2, after they had been rescued from the disastrous flood that ravaged five states. Kneeling is another son, the four being the only survivors of a family of 13, nine dying in the flood. Herman Fuchs and the boy were saved after a day and a night in a tree as the Republican river raged below.

Honeymoon Boat Saved to Ply at Niagara Again

The Honeymoon Special, the famed Maid of the Mist, again will ply the waters at the base of Niagara Falls this summer, victor over the fire that badly damaged the craft in drydock last February. Repair work is being rushed, as shown in this picture, new boilers and engines being installed, new planking laid, and a larger and more modern cabin being built, while Niagara rears an accompaniment to the hammers.

Four Houses Were Here; One Left

Where this torrent raged along a Pueblo, Colo., street, four brick residences stood, but only this one reeling on the brink of swollen Fountain creek remained after the fury of the flood had been spent here and rivers rushed eastward to take a toll of more than 300 lives and cause property damage far above $10,000,000. One room was ripped from this home and the attic roof left perilously jutting over the stream.

Brewer to Face Two New Charges

Oklahoma Practitioner Is Accused of Six Abortion Deaths

ENID, Okla.—(AP)—Two new murder charges were filed here Thursday against Dr. Guy E. Brewer, bringing to six the number of abortion death accusations confronting the country practitioner who spent virtually every cent he made sending needy boys through school.

The new charges, signed by Lieutenant Robert Huston, special investigator for Governor Marland, accused the Garber Physician in the deaths of Mrs. Wanda Lee Gray, 20, of near Enid, and Mrs. Elizabeth Shaw, 24, of Roxanna, in Logan county.

They were tried by County Attorney Roy Holbird.

The four other charges against Doctor Brewer accuse him in the deaths of Hermoine Fowler, 20-year-old Oklahoma A. & M. college co-ed; Mrs. Doris Jones of Enid, 20-year-old mother of two children, and Mrs. Ruby Ford and Myrtle Rose, 21, both of Ponca City.

Doctor Brewer has not yet been arraigned on any of the charges. He has been in the county jail here since his arrest the first week in May.

Arrest of Garber's "sweet grouch," as the eccentric physician was known by his scores of student proteges, brought hundreds of his fellow town-folks to his aid with petitions of praise and funds for his defense.

Arkansas Request for Stamp Filed

Postoffice Dept. Promises 'Serious and Sympathetic Consideration'

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Postoffice Department said Wednesday an application by Arkansas for a stamp commemorating the 100th anniversary of its admission to the Union would be given serious and sympathetic consideration.

It was said, however, no action would be taken on the request for some months since the statehood celebration is not until next year.

Similar requests by Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Maryland have been granted during the last 12 months.

Kidnapers Try to Make Contact

Millionaire's Valet Is Sent to Attorney With Letter

HAVANA.—(AP)—The kidnapers of Antonio San Miguel, aged Cuban millionaire, made a bold attempt Thursday to contact San Miguel's attorney, Pedro Herrera Sotolongo, with the millionaire's own valet.

The valet, Simon Arieta, was seized Wednesday evening with two other servants when San Miguel was captured. Thursday he showed up at Sotolongo's home with a letter from the kidnapers. Police took him into custody at once, however, and seized the letter.

They refused to say where they are holding Arieta or what the letter contained.

It is rumored that the kidnapers who made their capture while posing as mango peddlers, have demanded $500,000 ransom, but Sotolongo denied that this was correct. The attorney revealed that two months ago San Miguel was kidnaped, held for a few hours, and released after paying a small ransom.

"Last Saturday" said Sotolongo "the army secret service raided Senor San Miguel's home for arms. None was found, but the search created such a disturbance in the neighborhood that everyone from several miles around learned that Senor San Miguel, his servants, and his home, were without arms.

"This knowledge probably aided the kidnapers' plans. I am sure Arieta had a letter from the kidnapers and he tried to get it into my hands, but the police prevented him. So far we have not received ransom demands."

Rate Fight Costly to Phone Company

Southern Bell Is Ordered to Pay Fees to Huey Long

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—The bill of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. for fighting the rate reduction order of Senator Huey P. Long's Public Service Commission amounted to $37,500 Wednesday. Under special sessions of the legislature, utilities must pay the cost of being investigated in rate reduction cases.

The commission notified the company that it would have to pay $7,500 additional for fees of Senator Huey P. Long and other costs in the new proceeding filed against it last Saturday.

The new proceeding demands information about the company's business since the commission ordered it to reduce its rates last March 2 as well as data about what the commission describes as the company's excess plant.

Long, the commission's special lawyer, asked the state Supreme Court to approve an assessment of $20,000 against the phone company to pay his fee in litigation in which the company is fighting the rate reduction order.

Previously the commission exacted $30,000 from the company for its original rate inquiry prosecuted by Long that led to the rate reduction.

The total assessment against the phone company, the New Orleans Public Service Inc., the Baton Rouge Electric Company, and the Baton Rouge Water Works Company, whose respective phone, electric and water rates Long has said have been cut an aggregate of $1,233,591, is brought to $92,500.

OVERCOME HER NERVOUSNESS
"A few years ago," writes Mrs. Charles Sivill, of Harshorne, Okla., "I was weak and run-down. I seemed that nervousness was about to get the best of me. My mother told me about Cardui and that is what I decided to take. After I began taking Cardui, my appetite was better. I gained strength and was less nervous. By the time I had taken two bottles, I felt fine."

First, better appetite, and then more strength and a feeling of well-being! Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

actual construction of the buildings Thursday. Other carpenters will be put to work on the new project as they are needed. All carpenters or skilled workmen must come from the local union. This is a federal ruling.

A period of two months has been allowed for completion of the entire camp but it is expected that it will be ready for occupation before that time expires.

Holding Companies Called "A Racket"

Speech by Mild-Mannered Brown Creates Sensation in Senate

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A move to return to committee the bill to abolish public utility holding companies caused Senator Brown, Democrat, New Hampshire, to charge Wednesday that the whole utility holding system was a "racket" engaged in "juggling cash" and stripping investors.

The speech created a sensation because Senator Brown ordinarily is one of the mildest and most placid members of the upper house. His speech Wednesday was his second since he took his seat in 1933.

When he finished more than two dozen of his colleagues crowded around his desk to congratulate him. He denounced the effort to strip the bill of its provisions for abolishing holding companies, leaving the federal government only regulatory powers.

As a member of the New Hampshire Public Service Commission Brown said he learned "the dangers of the holding company business have been understated, not overstated."

He said he was "amazed at the degree of absentee ownership and concentration of power in the utilities industry," and "astonished at the brazen sense of irresponsibility" displayed by the companies.
